

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of transmitting a packet within a telecommunication network, wherein a total processing time is associated with the packet and modified by at least some network equipments as a function of a particular processing time and the 5 network equipments process the packet as a function of the associated total processing time.